From the Desk of Theresa Payton

I often get asked, "What do you use at home to protect your family?" Enclosed are some of my favorite products to use. Although NOTHING on the marketplace is 100% bulletproof, many of these tools do their best to protect you and what matters most.

To stay abreast of the cybercrime trends and easy tips to protect yourself from them, sign up for our newsletter at Bonus@FortaliceSolutions.com.

Email: Use two factor authentication for all mail. For sensitive matters, try the Proton Mail service at: <https://mail.protonmail.com>

Virtual Private Network: Proton Mail offers a free tool. Another option is the low cost VPN Disconnect at: <https://disconnect.me>

Private web surfing is possible using some free tools to your web browser. I like Ghostery <https://www.ghostery.com> and Privacy Badger <https://www.eff.org/privacybadger>

Encrypted texting is often a safer option. Try services such as Threema <https://threema.ch/en> or Signal which also has encrypted phone calls <https://signal.org>.

Links and attachments can be full of boobytraps. Before clicking on a link or opening an attachment, use VirusTotal which will scan more than 50 sources and will tell you if the link or file might be bad. <https://www.virustotal.com>

Consider hiding your real cell phone number by giving out another number that you forward to your phone. Try Google voice <https://voice.google.com> or Talkatone <http://www.talkatone.com>

At Fortalice, your cyber security comes first. We are former White House cyber operatives and national security veterans who have honed our craft protecting people, business, and nations for decades.
